Dear President of South Africa,

Olivia and Carter of One More Generation have done one of the most courageous things imaginable: raise their voices for life on earth.

Many of us around the world are keenly aware that life hangs in the balance, and that we are in danger of losing the amazing diversity of wildlife that exists on this planet. I was aware of this even as a teen myself, and as a young man I started writing songs about to help wake people up to the fact that the earth itself is in danger. Many of us do not want to live on a planet devoid of the fellow creatures who make our lives infinitely more valuable just because they are here. Those who live in the areas of greatest biological diversity must work especially hard to keep creature life from harm.

I support One More Generation with all my heart, and I hope that South Africa does everything it can to protect rhinos, elephants, lions, primates, and other endangered species, for I truly believe that we are all related, that all of us living on earth are relations to each another, and we must respect and revere life.

I join with Olivia and Carter, by pledging myself to their cause, which is my cause, and should be the cause of us all.

Thanks,
